A deafening silence?

Hi gang,

Two weeks ago I sent the email below to the group asking for some BESSIG feedback and received a response rate of 8%. Having spent a fair amount of time organizing these meetings, I found that discouraging.

Was it just a large scale oversight? Or is there not enough energy in the community to sustain this effort? Maybe we need to scale back? Take a break?

Thanks!

> Anne

```
Anne
Anne Wilson wrote:
> Hi BESSIG members,
> Please help me organize the next meeting by providing responses to a few > questions below. But, first let me make a few points:
> I do plan to investigate if the St. Julien and the Boulderado have > anything to offer, but for now assume nothing comes of that.
> Personally, I seek to not have to provide food. Not having to provide > AV equipment is also good, though I'm willing to provide AV equipment in > order to not have to provide food.
> If we went to a model where attendees expected to contribute something > to the cost of food and drinks provided, then we could potentially meet > anywhere where food could be delivered or otherwise brought in. And > anyone could potentially be responsible for the food, and thus the food > responsibility could be shared. Indeed, the meeting location could > also be rotated and that responsibility shared too. Separation of > concerns is good!
> If we meet at LASP we must forgo alcohol. But LASP has an excellent > room with great AV support and high bandwidth, which is much better for > remote participation via Skype. It has an easy location and ample > parking. Food can easily be delivered.
> The Millennium provides prepared food and alcoholic drinks in a neutral > location. It's an easy location with ample parking. Though, the room > is less than ideal due to its dimensions and location next to the > smoking bar. And, we must provide AV equipment, which is non trivial.
> The bandwidth is not sufficient for remote participation via Skype.
> So, with these thoughts in mind, please answer:
> Of the two choices of LASP or the Millennium, where would you prefer to > meet next month?
> In general, how much would you be willing to pay for food and beverages > to be provided? Would you prefer: no food, simple packages of chips, > or something prepared, such as pizza, chinese, burritos, greek, thai, etc.?
> Assuming your expenses were reimbursed by the group, would you be > willing to take on providing food for the next meeting?
> What topics do you suggest for October and November meetings?
> Would you be willing to organize the content for a future meeting topic?
   If so, what topic? (I will help and support the effort.)
> Btw, recall that we did start a page Meeting Topic and Organizer List:
> http://lasp.colorado.edu/galaxy/display/BESSIG/Meeting+Topic+and+Organizer+List.
   Perhaps as a group we should revisit that list.
> TIA for your responses to these questions!
```